Dear Friends,

We want to take this opportunity, to respond to some of your questions regarding when the Biblical Year begins.

To remind you, the Biblical Calendar is a luni-solar calendar, in which the sun and moon are to be for signs, appointed times, days, and years (Gen 1:14). In other words, the beginning of the month is anchored to a particular phase of the lunar cycle, and the beginning of the year is anchored to a particular phase of the solar cycle. And both begin with the sighting of the crescent New Moon (the sign), after the respective lunar/solar phase has been reached.

We know that the beginning of the Biblical Year is anchored to the solar phase of the Spring Equilux, because we're commanded to begin the Biblical Year with Chodesh HaAviv (month of the Aviv) (Ex 12:2, Ex 13:3-4, Ex 23:15, Ex 34:18, Dt 16:1). And the barley fields begin to ripen around the time of the Spring Equilux, as a result of the sun becoming stronger.

Also, beginning the Biblical Year with the crescent New Moon following the Spring Equilux, is how everyone knew when to start their trek up to the Temple, in time for Chag HaMatzot (Feast of Unleavened Bread). And how Chag HaSukkot (Feast of Booths), falls out at the end of the agricultural year (Ex 23:16, Ex 34:22, Lev 23:39, Dt 16:13).

In other words, while the Biblical Year begins with Chodesh HaAviv (month of the Aviv), it's not determined by a particular type of field, in a particular region, reaching a particular state, by a particular date, as this is going to vary depending on how close the beginning of the month is to the Spring Equinox and the weather, each year.

Can Aviv Barley be found, in types of fields which ripen quickly in the warmer regions, prior to the Spring Equinox? Absolutely, that's why there's no prohibition against harvesting as needed, rather we're only prohibited from eating from the harvest, before Yom HaNafat HaOmer (Day of the Wave Sheaf Offering) (Lev 23:14).

In summation, the connection between the Spring Equinox and Chodesh HaAviv (month of the Aviv), changes nothing for those of us who already understood that Chodesh HaAviv (month of the Aviv), begins with crescent New Moon after Aviv Barley can be found. It simply adds the understanding that we know in advance which month will be the beginning of the Biblical Year.

As the Biblical Year began with the crescent New Moon sighting on 30 March 2025, Chag HaMatzot (Feast of Unleavened Bread) will begin on 13 April 2025 at sunset. In other words, we will wake up on 13 April 2025, go about our business, and then at sunset we will commemorate the Passover Sacrifice and begin the holiday (at the same time).

The Biblical Calendar is a luni-solar calendar (Gen 1:14), in which the months begin with the sighting of the crescent New Moon (the sign), following conjunction (the lunar phase). And similarly, the years begin with the sighting of the crescent New Moon (the sign), following the Spring Equilux (the solar phase). This is what's meant by the commandment to begin the Biblical Year with Chodesh HaAviv (month of the Aviv) (Ex 12:2, Ex 13:3-4, Ex 23:15, Ex 34:18, Dt 16:1), as the barley begins to become Aviv at the time of the Spring Equilux, as result of the sun becoming stronger. Beginning the Biblical Year with the New Moon after the Spring Equilux, is also how everyone knew when to start their trek up to the Temple in time for Chag HaMatzot (Feast of Unleavened Bread), regardless of when their fields became Aviv. In fact, if one were to begin the Biblical Year prior to the Spring Equilux, Chag HaSukkot (Feast of Booths) won't fall out at the end of the agricultural year (Ex 23:16, Ex 34:22, Lev 23:39, Dt 16:13).
